National Historical Society GUIDE TO GENEALOGY

The Ancient History of the Distinguished Surname

* JONES ****

Beautiful Wales, mountainous land of the red dragon and Eisteddfods (music festivals) and King Arthur, gives us the distinguished surname of Jones.

The Romans vacated the British Isles at the end of the 4th century. The Welsh or Ancient Britons were left in sole possession of all of England, all the way north to the banks of the Clyde. The Saxons forced them westward into the mountains of what is now Wales, north to Cumberland and southern Scotland, and into Cornwall.

Rhodri Mawr, or Roderick the Great, was the first recorded monarch of all Wales. He died in 893. On his death he gave Wales to his three sons, Anarawd became King of North Wales, Cadalh became King of South Wales and Mervyn became King of Powys, or mid Wales.

The ancient history of the name Jones also emerges from these same Welsh chronicles. It was first found in Denbighshire where they were seated from very ancient times, some say well before the Norman Conquest and the arrival of Duke William at Hastings in 1066 A.D.

From some of the many early records researchers examined, manuscripts such as the Domesday Book, the Pipe Rolls, Hearth Rolls, the Black Book of the Exchequer, the Curia Regis Rolls, your family name, Jones, was traced in many different forms. Although your name Jones was mentioned in several different records, it was spelt Jones, Jonas, and these changes in spelling frequently occurred, even between father and son. It was not uncommon for a person to be born with one spelling, marry with another, and still have another on the headstone in his or her resting place.

The Norman Conquest of Wales was less than conclusive. A testimony to the Welsh fighting spirit is that there are more castles, or ruins of castles, to the square mile in Wales than anywhere else in the world. The Welsh tactic was to thrust, then retire to their bleak mountain homes to plan their next attack. As peace gradually returned to this picturesque country, the Welsh, attracted by the economic opportunities, moved eastward into the English cities.

This distinguished Welsh family name Jones emerged in Denbighshire where they were recorded as a family of great antiquity seated with manor and estates in that shire. Their ancient family seat was at Llanerchrugog. The name Jones, second only to Smith as prolific surnames, descends from three main sources, from Gwaithvoed, Lord Cardigan, Chief of one of the 15 noble tribes of North Wales in 921, and from Bleddyn Ap Cynfyn, King of Powys, and Dyffryn Clwyd, a Chieftain of Denbighland. All three lines merged in Denbighshire about the 11th century and it is not known which of the three produced most of this prolific surname. They were a very strong English Welsh border family in Hereford, Shropshire, Carnarvon (Glan Helen), Brecon, and by the 16th century occupied Castle March, Bower Park, Fonmon Castle, Glamorgan, and they also settled in Cardigan, Gloucestershire, Montgomeryshire, Flint. By the 17th century this name had encroached into most of the southeast English counties. Prominent amongst the family during the late middle ages was Dyffryn Clwyd Jones.

For the next two or three centuries the surname Jones flourished and played an important role in local county politics and in the affairs of Britain in general.

Religious conflicts followed. The newly found passionate fervour of Cromwellianism found the Roman Church still fighting to regain its status and rights. The power of the Church, and the Crown, their assessments, tithes, and demands imposed a heavy burden on rich and poor alike. They looked to the New World for their salvation. Many became pirates who roamed the islands of the West Indies such as Captain Morgan.

Some were shipped to Ireland where they were known as the Adventurers for land. Essentially, they contracted to keep the Protestant faith, being granted lands for small sums, previously owned by the Catholic Irish. In Ireland they could be found in almost every county.

The New World also held many attractions. They sailed across the stormy Atlantic aboard the tiny sailing ships, built for 100 passengers, but sometimes carrying 400 or 500, ships which were to become known as the "White Sails". The overcrowded ships, sometimes spending two months at sea, were wracked with disease. Those that survived the elements were often stricken with small pox, dysentery and typhoid, sometimes landing with only 60 to 70% of the original passenger list.

In North America, one of the first migrants which could be considered a kinsman of the Jones family or having a variation of the family surname spelling, was Anne Jones who settled in 1648 in Virginia; also settled in Virginia were Charles Jones in 1636; Christopher Jones in 1652; David Jones in 1636; Dorothy Jones in 1654; Edward Jones in 1624; Elizabeth Jones in 1624; Evan Jones in 1635; George Jones in 1622; Henry Jones in 1638; Howel Jones in 1642; Hugh Jones in 1635; Humphrey Jones in 1636, and many many more.

There are many notable contemporaries of this name, Emlyn Jones, American Sociologist; Sir Brynmor Jones, British Chemist; Evan Jones, Archivist; Sir Ewart Jones; Geraint Jones, Conductor; Sir Glyn Jones, Diplomat; Gwyn Jones, Physicist; Gwynneth Jones, Opera Singer.

Whilst researching the family name Coat of Arms we traced the most ancient recording and grant of Arms. Those many branch Coat of Arms which were granted down through the ages may also be appropriate to the name.

The most ancient grant of a Coat of Arms found was:

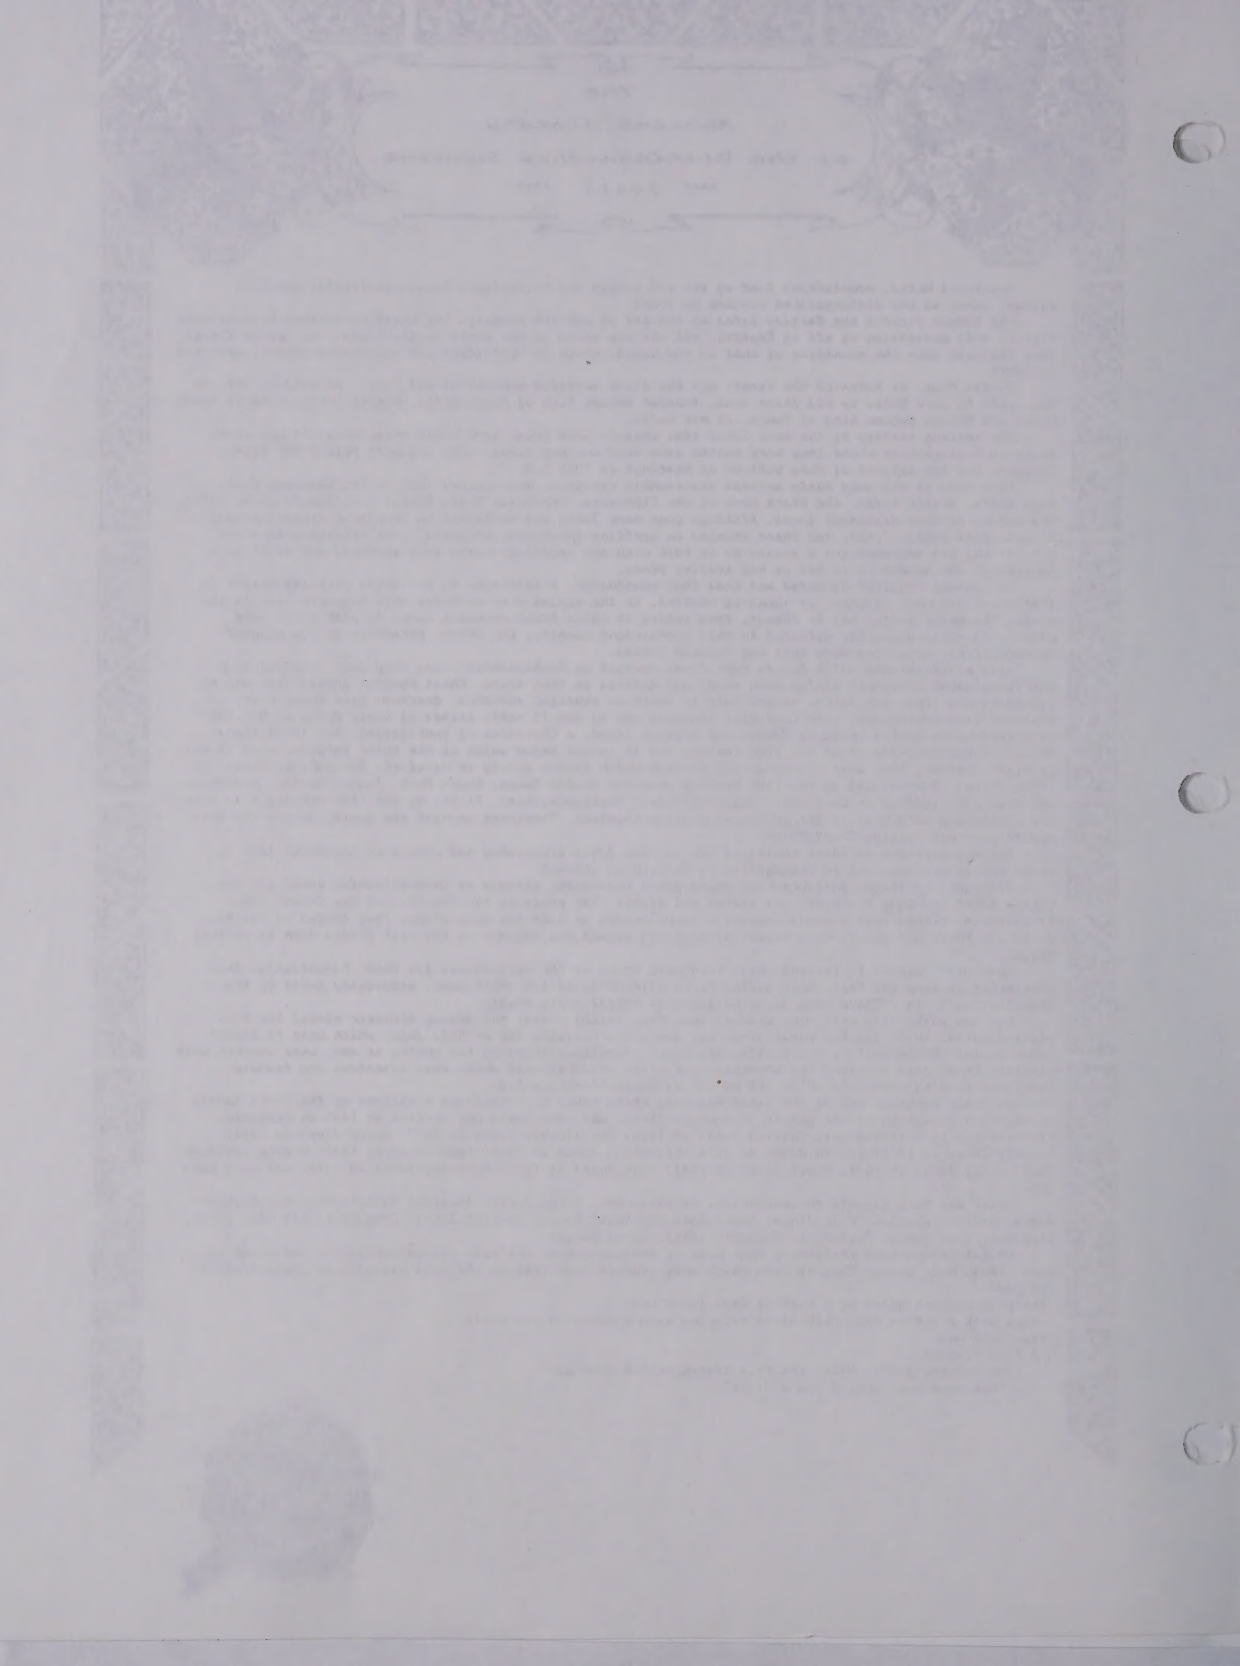
Blue with a silver lion with blood dripping from a wound in its chest.

The Crest was:

A lion rampant.

The ancient family Motto for this distinguished name was:

"Heb Dduw Heb Ddim, A Duw a Digon"



Jephson A leading Anglo-Irish family of Co. Cork especially in the Mallow area. Bibl.

Jerety A variant of MacGeraghty in Westmeath.

Jervois Since settling in Ireland in the mid-seventeenth century this family has been closely identified with Co. Cork. This name, like Jarvis, Gervase etc., is derived from the Old-French forename Gervais.

Mac Jimpsey See Gimpsey.

Johnson Many of the Johnsons in Ireland, especially in Ulster, are of Scottish origin. This name, in Ireland however, is often a translation of MacShane and so a branch of the O'Neills. See MacKeown. It is much less numerous than Johnston, which is an English toponymic.

Johnston(e) Bibl; App. See previous entry.

Jolley, Joly This name is on record in Ireland since the sixteenth century. Both forms are derived from the French joliffe, festive. Bibl; SIF 94.

Jones This, the most numerous surname in Wales and common in England, is also one of the most numerous settler names in Ireland. It is found in every county, especially in the larger towns. It has been gaelicized as Mac Seóin. Bibl; App.

Jordan Mac Siúrtáin. A Gaelic patronymic adopted by the d'Exeter family, one of those which acquired estates in Connacht after the Anglo-Norman invasion; that territory was later called MacJordan's country. The name is now numerous in all the provinces. IF 188; Map Mayo.

Joy This is found in very early Irish records. In Connacht it is a variant of Joyce. In Munster, where it has close association with both Kerry and Waterford, it is of French origin.

Joyce Seoigh. A family of Welsh origin which became completely hibernicized; their territory was called Joyce's country. They also became one of the 'Tribes of Galway'. IF 189; Map Galway.

Judge See Breheny.

K

Mac Kaig See MacKeague.

Kalshander See Alexander.

(O) Kanavaghan Ó Connmhacháin. This small sept is genealogically akin to the O'Hara; the name is now usually corrupted to Conway or Convey. Map Sligo.

Mac Kane, Kain Variants of the Scottish MacKean but not of the Clare MacKeane.

(O) Kane, O Cahan Ó Catháin. As lords of Keenaght the O'Kanes were a leading sept in Ulster up to the time of the Plantation of Ulster. The name is still very numerous in its original homeland. Bibl; IF 191; Map Derry-Tyrone. See also Keane.

(Mac) Kangley Mac Ceanglaigh. A Breffny sept of Co. Cavan. Sometimes anglicized Tighe by pseudo-translation (q.v.). Woulfe suggests that it may be a corruption of Ó Coinghealbhuigh (Quinnelly), but that has no connexion with Breffny.

Kavanagh Caomhánach. A famous branch of the MacMurroughs. The name is said to have been adopted from the first Kavanagh having been fostered by a successor of St Caomhan. The use of the prefix O with it is wrong. Bibl; IF 189; Map Wexford.

Mac Kavanagh A variant of MacCavanna. See also Keaveney and Keevan. The name has no connexion in any way with Kavanagh of Co. Wexford.

Mac Kay The name of a Scottish clan, some of whom settled in Ulster. Also, like MacKee, a synonym of Mac Aodha. IF 97. See MacHugh and MacCoy.

(Mac) Keady Mac Céadaigh. Céadach was a personal name (from céad, hundred). Popular

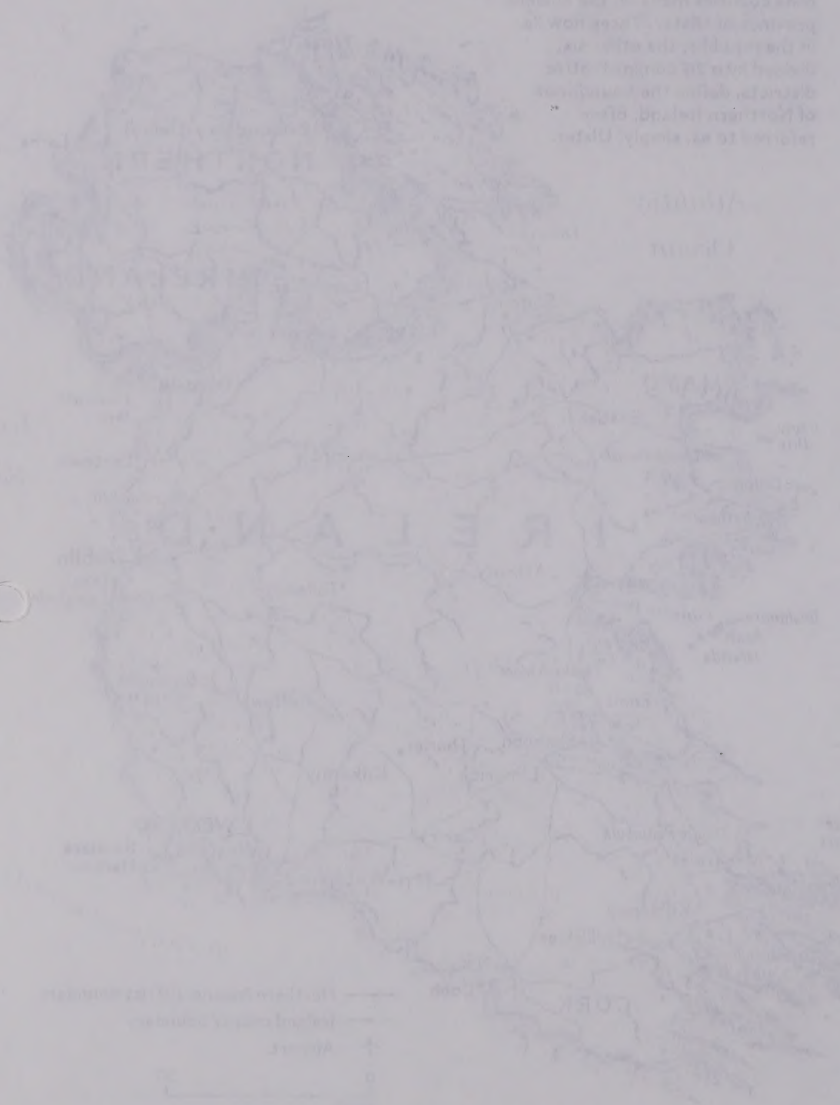
Only a day's drive across, Ireland hardly seems large enough to contain its clamorous history. A succession of invaders—Celts, Vikings, Normans—created an Irish stew of peoples that seethed during 700 years of English domination. Waves of outmigration were set in motion by high birthrates, the practice of farmers bestowing property only upon the first-born son, and the 19th-century potato famine.

Contention over territory will remain as long as forces for and against uniting British-controlled Northern Ireland with the Republic of Ireland, independent since 1922, stay locked in their murderous stalemate.

Nine counties made up the ancient province of Ulster. Three now lie in the republic; the other six, divided into 26 administrative districts, define the boundaries of Northern Ireland, often referred to as, simply, Ulster.



Welsh

The movement of Welsh people to Ireland, while admittedly lacking the intensity and significance of the English and Scottish settlements here, was nonetheless a recognized phenomenon from early historical times. The seventeenth-century Irish historian, Geoffrey Keating, in a passage in Forus Feasa ar Éirinn, maintained that "Ireland was a place of refuge for the Welsh whenever they suffered persecution from the Romans or Saxons." "Large numbers of them," he goes on to say, "with their families, followers and cattle used to repair for refuge to Ireland where the Irish nobles would give them land." In the ninth and tenth centuries the Viking harrassment of Wales was responsible for a considerable influx of Welshmen into Ireland: an entry in the Annals of the Four Masters for the year 874 even records that Roary Mac Murmine, king of the Welshmen, sought refuge in Ireland from the Black Danes.

It was, however, the Cambrian element in the Anglo-Norman invasion of Ireland that accounts, in the main, for the infusion of Welsh stock into the native population. It will be remembered that many of the leaders of that invasion, like Fitzgerald and Fitzstephen, were themselves partly Welsh. Giraldus Cambrensis, the chronicler of the invasion, tells us that Robert Fitzstephen, who landed in Ireland in 1169, was accompanied by three hundred archers on foot, representing, as he put it, "the flower of the south of Wales." Almost certainly many of these soldiers, who came from south Wales and especially Pembrokeshire, eventually settled as tenants on the feudal manors of their Norman masters.

Irish tradition points to a number of other settlements by the Welsh in Ireland in the twelfth and subsequent centuries. The seventeenth century antiquary and genealogist, Duald MacFirbis, in a tract on the Welshmen of Tirawley, gives an account of a Welsh settlement in the thirteenth century in north-west Connacht. According to him, the Irish families of Walsh, Barrett, Joyce, MacHale, Wallace, Tomlin, Hosty and Lawless, so characteristic of the area, are descended from these Welsh settlers. In addition to this Connacht settlement, there is also a tradition of a Welsh colony in Co. Antrim. Conell MacGeoghagan, the seventeenth-century translator of the Annals of Clonmacnoise, notes that the families of Barrett, Cusack and McQuillin of the Route, in north Antrim, "are Welsh and came from Wales to this land."

Lastly, among the Cromwellian soldiery there can be identified a fair sprinkling of Welshmen. They were mainly "marcher Welsh," originating in those parts of Wales abutting on the English border. By temperament dissenters and free worshippers, their natural dislike of establishment religion had inclined them to support the puritanical Cromwell. A number opted to take up land in Ireland in lieu of payment for army service: the Evanses, Morgans and Morrises who settled in Munster fall into this category.

Flemings

Mention may be made here of the movement of a small but interesting group of people from South Wales to Ireland just before and also during the Norman invasion of Ireland. When in 1167 Dermot MacMurrough returned to Ireland from Wales, where he had gone to elicit Norman support for his campaign to re-establish himself as King of Leinster, he was accompanied by a knight from Pembrokeshire named Richard Fitzgodebert. Almost certainly the Fitzgodeberts or Godeberts belonged to the colony of Flemings planted in the province of Ros in Pembrokeshire by Henry I in the early twelfth century. Later generations of the family of Godebert "the Fleming," Orpen states, took the name of de la Roche, from the rock-castle near Haverford in Pembrokeshire.

A close reading of the sources suggests that the Flemings of South Wales played a considerable role in the invasion. In their record of the events of 1169 the Four Masters speak of Loingeas na Fflemendach do thocht . . . ., that is to say "the coming of the Flemish fleet . . . ." Moreover, the little band of warriors who joined Maurice de Prendergast on his expedition to Ireland were, no doubt, largely composed of mercenaries drawn from the Flemish settlement in the neighbourhood of Haverford. Maurice's native place was Haverford, while Orpen notes that the name Prendergast survives as that of a suburb of Haverford.

A comprehensive account of the Jewish settlement in Ireland from earliest times to 1910 can be read in The Jews in Ireland, by Louis Hyman, published by Irish University Press, 1972.

Conclusion

History, as Bronowski reminds us in The Ascent of Man, is not, in the final analysis, about events but people. In turn, man is not merely the embodiment of his present and future but, in his day to day life, also acts out a little of the past. In a sense, some among us could be said to be people who have been living on this island for over two thousand years. New arrivals intermarrying with the descendants of earlier settlers in the fullness of time produced a common identity: the peoples of Ireland merged to become the Irish people.

Over the ages there is no telling how many individuals wind and wave have thrown up upon our shores, and one can only hope that those who made the shore could truly say of the land they found that it became for them, in Homer's words, "a rough country but a good nurse."

A Dé 7 a Muire is mor do na genelacaib sin nac bfuil fis agam ar bith cé h-iad: O God, many are the generations I have no knowledge whatsoever about.

The Elusive Ancestor

I went searching for an ancestor, I cannot find him still.
He moved around from place and did not leave a will.
He married where a courthouse burned, hew mended all his fences.
He avoided any man who came to take the U.S. census.
He always kept his luggage packed, this man who had no fame.
And every 20 years or so, this rascal changed his name.
His parents came from Europe, they should be upon some list
Of passengers to the USA but somehow they got missed.
And no one else in this world is searching for this man,
So I play geneasolitare to find him if I can.
I'm told he's buried in a plot, with tombstone he is blessed;
but weather took engraving and some vandals took the rest.
He died before the county clerks decided to keep records.
No family Bible has emerged in spite of all my efforts.
To top it off this ancestor, who caused me many groans,
Just to give me one more pain, betrothed a girl named JONES.

INTRODUCTION

Research for this book included census, immigration records, various films and books at the McClelland Library District, University of Southern Colorado, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Family History Center, and Pueblo Historical Society Museum. A number of individuals whose parents were first generation Irish in Pueblo were interviewed and their stories with accompanying photographs have been included.

It was very surprising to find that files titled Irish or Hibernia were non-existent at both the Pueblo Chieftain Newspaper and the McCelland Library District; especially since the Irish contributed so much to the labor market by working in hospitals and churches, in the mines, the steel mill, as servants in homes, and as doctors and lawyers. " When Colorado Fuel and Iron purchased land to build on, agents of CF&I were sent back east to seek workers. Slovanians, Germans and Italians came for employment (Lore, 1989)." "Today Pueblo is one of the world's greatest melting pots. Its population of 113,400 residents represents 30 or more nationalities,...industries in the last seven decades also have brought many different people to Pueblo—Italians, Austrians, Yugoslavs, Czechs, Slovaks, Danes, Poles, Negroes and Mexicans, to name a few, (Lore, 1980)". Again, no mention of the Irish.

This research concerning the Irish in Pueblo at the turn of the twentieth century shows they were indeed a part of the development of Pueblo. They built some of the first permanent buildings; served as some of the first priests and nuns; built the first Catholic churches and schools; and made up a large labor force in the fields of servants; policemen and firemen; smelter and steel mill workers. Of course the Irish miners were very important because they did that type of work in Ireland and did not have to be trained to serve in that capacity upon their arrival in Pueblo.

The Irish were hard working people who were willing to work to provide for their large families. Many saved their money in order to send for their families who were still living in Ireland and who wanted to come to America to escape the poor living conditions and religious persecution in their homeland.

Songs of Ireland, by Mel Bay Publications, Inc.

When Irish immigrants arrived in America, they faced an often less than enthusiastic reception. Many songs were written concerning this type of discrimination. The following two songs are an example.

NO IRISH WANTED HERE

I am an Irish laborer, both hearty, stout and strong.
For idleness I never love, to my race it don't belong,
I've still the strength and will to toil for want of a life so dear;
But I'm told wherever I ask for work, "There's no Irish wanted here."
When your country was in danger but a few short years ago.
You were not so particular about who should fight the foe,
When men were needed for the ranks to preserve our rights so dear,
Among the bravest of the brave, it was: "Irish wanted here".
For generous hearts and charity you could search this wide world 'round
For Paddy's hospitality its like was never found,
He'd give the clothes from off his back, his blood for friends so dear,
But through in justice and vile envy there's no Irish wanted here.
Then turn your hearts to kindness, take poor Paddy from the wall,
For God in heaven made this world with lots of room for all,
So stretch your arms across the sea to that little isle so dear,
And give the Irish girls and boys glad welcome over here.

NO IRISH NEED APPLY

"I'm a decent boy just landed from the town of Ballyfad,
I want a situation and I want it very bad.
I have seen employment advertised, 'tis just the thing says I,
But the dirty spalpeen ended with, "No Irish need apply."
"Whoo!" says I, but that's an insult, tho to get the place I'll try,"
So I went to see this blackguard with his "No Irish need apply."
Some do count it a misfortune to be christened Pat or Dan,
But to me it is an honor to be born an Irishman.
I started out to find the house,
I got it mighty soon,
There I found the old chap seated,
He was reading the Tribune.
I told him what I came for,
When he in a rage did fly,
"No," he says, "You are a Paddy,
And no Irish need apply.
Then I gets my dander rising,
And I'd like to black his eye,
To tell an Irish gentleman,
"No Irish need apply."
I couldn't stand it longer
So ahold of him I took,
And gave him such a welting
As he'd get at Donnybrook.
He hollered, "Millia Murther,"
And to get away did try,
And swore he'd never write again,
"No Irish need apply."
Well, he made a big apology,
I bid him then good-bye,
Saying, "When next you want a beating,
Write "No Irish need apply."

100th Anniversary of St. Patrick's Church

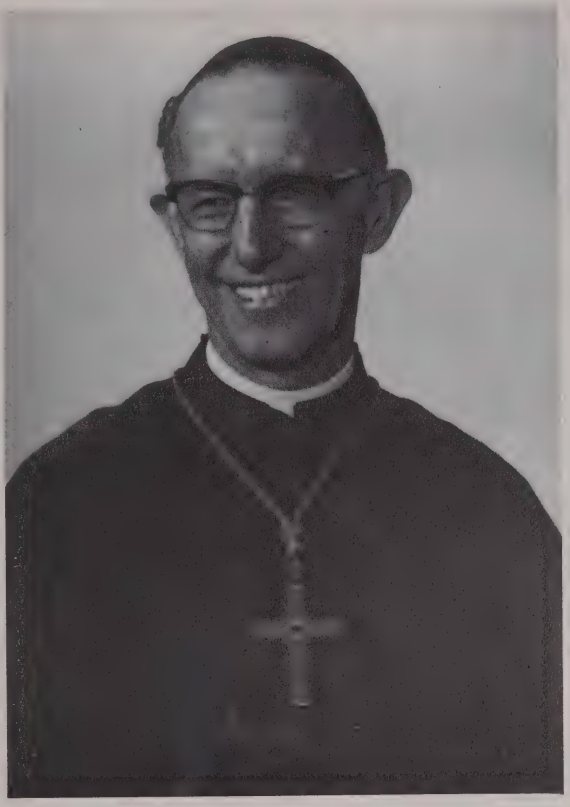
Pueblo, Colorado

1882 - 1982

This page is prayerfully dedicated to the pioneer parishioners of this parish, whose devotion to their Faith and dedication to their parish have allowed St. Patrick's to develop and grow over these past one hundred years, as well as to the many other parishioners who, by their untiring labors in the fields of education, liturgy and social activities, are keeping St. Patrick's alive and flourishing.

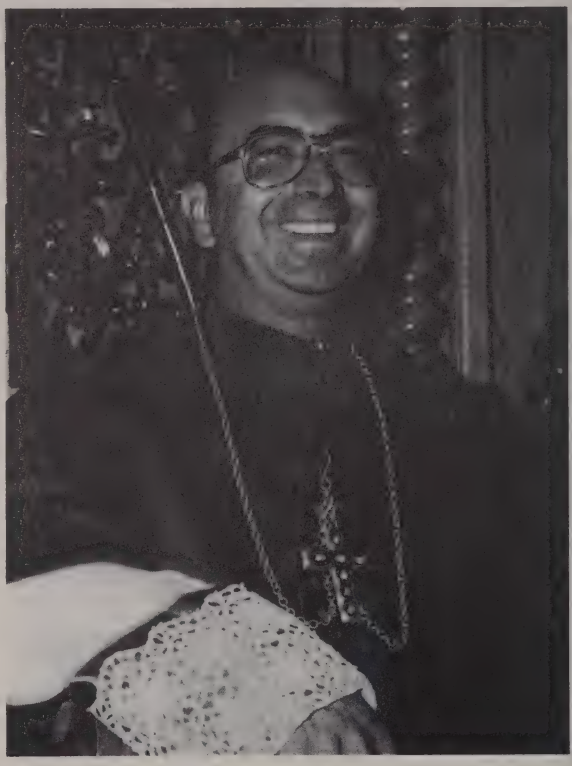
BISHOP JOSEPH CLEMENT WILLGING

Bishop Joseph Clement Willging was born in Dubuque, Iowa September 6, 1884. He was ordained to the priesthood on June 20, 1908, consecrated Bishop on February 24, 1942 and installed as Bishop of the Diocese of Pueblo on March 12, 1942. He served as Bishop until his death March 3, 1959.



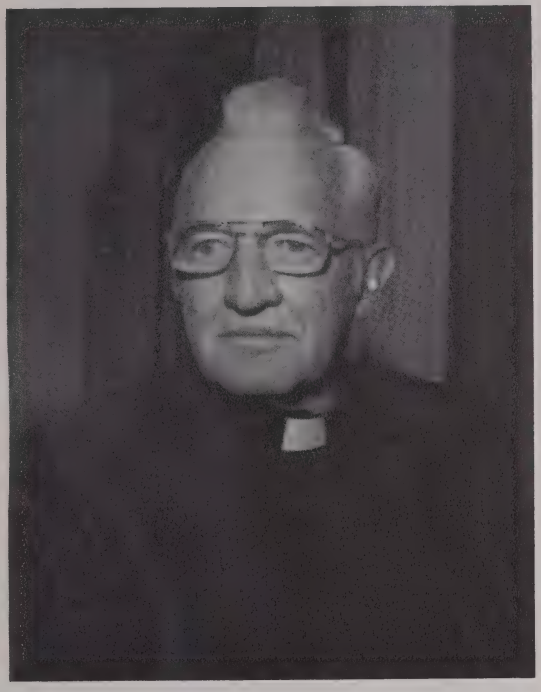
BISHOP CHARLES ALBERT BUSWELL

Bishop Charles Albert Buswell was born in Homestead, Oklahoma October 15, 1913. He was ordained to the priesthood on July 9, 1939, consecrated Bishop on September 30, 1959 and installed as Bishop of the Diocese of Pueblo on October 6, 1959. He retired September 18, 1979.



BISHOP ARTHUR NICHOLAS TAFOYA

Bishop Arthur Nicholas Tafoya replaced Bishop Buswell as Bishop of the Pueblo Diocese on September 10, 1980. He was born in Alameda, New Mexico March 2, 1933. He was ordained to the priesthood on May 12, 1962.



REV. MICHAEL J. BYRNE

Rev. Michael J. Byrne, the present pastor of St. Patrick Parish was born in Manhattan, New York on September 30, 1924. His high school days were spent on Long Island, New York. He comes from a family of nine children of which three are still alive, to include two older sisters.

His college days were spent partly in Canada and partly in New York. He studied theology in Litchfield, Connecticut and was ordained there on March 8, 1952. In the ensuing years he did graduate work at Catholic University Washington D.C., Western State College, Adams State College, St. Louis University and University of Northern Colorado. He now holds his master degree and doctoral degree in psychology.

He came to the Pueblo Diocese February 10, 1961. He was appointed assistant in St. Joseph's Parish in Salida, Colorado, Mt. Carmel Parish in Trinidad, Newman Apostolate in Pueblo, Newman Apostolate at Adams State College where he taught as assistant professor until his appointment back to Pueblo in 1979. He spent one year as chaplain at St. Mary-Corwin Hospital until his appointment as pastor of St. Patrick Parish on July 8, 1980.

Since arriving at St. Patrick Parish many changes have taken place in restoring the physical beauty in the parish. With God's help there has been an increase in the number of families attending the liturgy at St. Patrick's. The religious education program has flourished with more children in attendance. There has been an increase in parish activities since his arrival.

REV. JOHN McGRATH

Rev. John McGrath was ordained in the Cathedral at Thurles, County Tipperary, Ireland on June 8, 1947 by His Grace, the Most Rev. J. Kinane. In August of 1967 Fr. John McGrath, the first priest to come assigned to Colorado from Ireland, took charge as pastor of the destinies of St. Patrick's.

In 1969 St. Patrick's closed its school because of the decline in attendance over the years. The following year all the Catholic schools closed in the city of Pueblo and a new horizon in religious education dawned over the Diocese. More emphasis was placed on the parental responsibility in this field and out of this grew the family education program being used in our religious education program today.

Father McGrath left St. Patrick's in August of 1980 to assume the pastorate in St. Peter's church in Rocky Ford.

MONSIGNOR LEO J. THOME, V.F.

He was ordained May 26, 1934 in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, Denver, by the Most Rev. Urban J. Vehr, Bishop of Denver. In October of 1948 he was named pastor of St. Patrick's Parish in Pueblo and invested as a Domestic Prelate on December 11, 1949. He also was dean of the Pueblo deanery. Rev. Monsignor Leo Thome, V.F. succeeded the Very Rev. Joseph Warnat as pastor on October 4, 1948. Under his administration the entire plant was renovated. On October 31, 1954 an open house was held in a new convent and that same year on December 8, Bishop Joseph Willging dedicated a remodeled school building that was to serve as a combination gymnasium and hall with kitchen facilities.

He remained pastor until his death in 1967.

During his administration, two young men studied for the priesthood.

MONSIGNOR JOSEPH F. WARNAT

He was ordained in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Denver by the Most Rev. Urban J. Vehr on June 11, 1938.

In 1939 he came to St. Patrick's as an assistant. He was named administrator of St. Patrick's Parish in Ouray on September 15, 1941. On February 23, 1945 he was named administrator of St. Patrick's Parish in Pueblo.

During his administration the addition to St. Patrick's church was built.

Father Warnat remained at St. Patrick Church until 1948, at which time he became pastor of the Shrine of St. Therese. He supervised the construction of the Shrine and was its first pastor. He designed and supervised the construction of the hall and school of St. Therese.

He is currently pastor of St. Therese church in Vineland.

THE VERY REVEREND JOSEPH HIGGINS

The Very Reverend Joseph Higgins was ordained in the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception in Denver on June 15, 1919. He became pastor of St. Patrick's Church on August 15, 1925.

During his administration Pueblo Catholic High School received accreditation with the North Central Association, which requires a high scholastic rating.

He was president of the Pueblo Council of Social Agencies and for a number of years was a member of its board of directors. He also served on the board of the Pueblo Community Chest, Family Service Society, Salvation Army and other civic organizations.

He also served as Rocky Mountain director of the Catholic Hospital Association of America.

A financial drive for parish and school debt reduction and a building fund, conducted under his administration in 1941, netted pledges of $68,000.

In religious activities he was untiring in his efforts to promote knowledge of encyclicals written by Popes Leo XIII and Pius XI, dealing with the rights and duties of capital and labor to each other and the right of a worker to a living wage.

After the diocese of Pueblo was erected in 1942, he secured the gift of the episcopal residence from Mrs. Spencer Penrose of Colorado Springs, and supervised its remodeling. Bishop Joseph C. Willging appointed him a director of the diocesan Holy Name Society, diocesan consultor, and member of the diocesan matrimonial court.

In November of 1942 he became a chaplain in the army.

He died in May of 1945 and Bishop Joseph C. Willging, in his funeral sermon at the Pontifical Requiem Mass May 4 for the Very Reverend Joseph F. Higgins said "It is as a good shepherd that every pastor wants to be remembered by his people, and that is the way in which Father Higgins would want to be remembered."

Bishop Willging paid high tribute to Father Higgins for his devotion to the sick and his interest in priestly vocations, as manifest in the number of splendid young men who came out of the boundaries of St. Patrick's Parish and studied for the priesthood while Father Higgins was pastor there.

History of St. Patrick Church

The effectiveness and greatness of a church cannot be measured by the brick and mortar or the stone and marble which contribute so much to the beauty and architectural grandeur of many cathedrals and churches.

As St. Patrick Church observes its 100th anniversary, it has none of these material monuments which are a part of the glory of many parishes of great wealth.

But what St. Patrick Church does leave (it is the oldest Catholic building in Pueblo) is the greatest heritage possible, a history woven around the love of Christ.

This steadfast devotion to and practice of our faith was nurtured by the Jesuit priests who founded the parish a century ago and by the Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati who came to Pueblo to teach at St. Patrick School when it was started in 1885.

This history reflecting the deep love of Christ is evidenced primarily by two factors:

1. The frequent reception of the Sacraments (a church report in the early days of the parish shows there were 19,000 receiving Holy Communion when the entire population of the city was small).

2. The perpetuation of the faith by the large number of vocations to the religious life.

For 42 years, these vocations were among the young ladies of the parish who entered the convent. Most of them went to the Sisters of Charity.

The large number entering the religious life is reflected in a report made in 1920 which lists nine girls dedicating their lives to God in two years. Eight of them joined the Sisters of Charity and one went to the Sisters of Mercy in Denver. Seven of the nine were from St. Patrick High School.

While the vocations to religious orders for women had existed for years, there were none to the priesthood until the administration of Father Joseph F. Higgins, the first diocesan priest to become pastor of St. Patrick Church.

Father Higgins was appointed pastor in 1925.

Within two years, St. Patrick parish had its first vocation to the priesthood. That was when Msgr. John B. Cavanagh was graduated from St. Patrick High School in 1927 and entered St. Thomas Seminary in Denver. He served as editor of the Denver Catholic Register and later pastor of St. Joseph's Church in Ft. Collins. At present he is retired and living in Denver.

He was followed by Msgr. Bernard Cullen, now pastor of St. Louis Church, Englewood, Colorado.

Msgr. John Kelly, now deceased, served as chancellor of the Diocese of Pueblo and different parishes through the city.

Rev. Forest Allen served in the Denver dioceses (now deceased).

Msgr. George Subotich is chancellor of the diocese of Pueblo.

Rev. Bernard Griesemer joined the Trappist order.

Rev. Edward J. Pettit is at present pastor of St. Francis Church, Pueblo.

Rev. William Thompson is now Prior of Holy Cross Abbey in Canon City, and also serves as novice master and formation director.

Msgr. George Holland is now pastor of Immaculate Heart of Mary Church, Grand Junction.

Rev. Angus Cooper, O.F.M. Saint Francis, is now in California.

Rev. William Phillips is at the California diocese.

The high academic standards of St. Patrick High School are attested to by the accomplishments of graduates who entered the religious life and in other fields, including education, business and medicine. Also there are graduates who attained national acclaim in music and government.

The original church was built at a cost of $10,000 in 1882.

The funds were raised by Father Daniel Haugh S.J. and he offered the first mass there on December 2, 1883, according to a previous history of the parish.

The stone building, now a gymnasium, was built in 1885 by Father Aloysius Montenarelli, S.J. who had succeeded the first resident pastor, Father Balse Schiffini, S.J.

In 1901, Father Leo Krenz, S.J. built the red brick building which considerably increased the size of the school.

Its cost was $9,000 and the debt was paid off in 1904 by Father John Weir who had become pastor.

Another addition was built by Father Baptist Schimpf who was to hold the pastorate on two occasions.

In 1920, Father Edward Barry, then holding the pastorate for the second time, had architectural plans drafted for a three-story building for the high school, but the lowest bid was $35,000.

"We had intended to go ahead with the work this summer, but found the cost prohibitive and altogether out of proportion to our resources," Father Barry wrote. "If prices come down or our revenue goes up to meet them we will put up the building during the coming school year," he wrote.

But it did not become possible to acquire the funds.

Finances were ever a problem in the parish, principally because of the cost of conducting the grade and high school.

For many years it was the only parochial grade school in the city. No Pueblo parish ever had a high school, although in the earlier years of the century the Benedictine priests conducted a private high school for boys.

Apart from a small tuition, about $5 a month, St. Patrick parish was responsible for the cost of the high school.

A 1920 report for the grade and high school in the 1919-1920 school years shows a deficit of $1,769, then a substantial sum of money.

In 1935 St. Patrick's High School was renamed Pueblo Catholic High; however, the school continued in the same building with the arrangement that each parish would assume financial and other responsibilities for the students.

The class of 1950 was the last graduating class from St. Patrick's school building.

There were also unexpected expenses.

Two days after Father Higgins was appointed pastor of the parish, the Pueblo Health Department informed him that it would not allow the opening of the school that fall, 1925, unless new toilet facilities were constructed.

Not many years later, diocesan officials declared that the special improvement district assessment and the accumulated interest constituted a moral obligation and had to be paid.

That obligation had to be paid. Church properties are exempt from general taxes, but when an improvement district was formed for construction of paving or sewers in a neighborhood, the exemption did not apply.

In the early part of 1941, Father Higgins had the plans drawn for the existing front of the church. A picture of the plans and a fund raising program appeared in a Sunday edition of the Pueblo Chieftain and Star-Journal.

The drive for funds was successful, but payments were to be made over a period of years.

Before construction could begin, Father Higgins entered the Army as a World War II chaplain. Father Joseph F. Warnat was named administrator after Father Higgins entered the Army and during his administration, the addition, providing substantially more seating capacity, was built.

While Father Higgins was in France, President Franklin D. Roosevelt died. Authorities in France immediately arranged for a memorial Mass in Notre Dame Cathedral and asked Father Higgins, an eloquent speaker, to deliver the sermon.

He wrote to friends here that a very kindly and highly personable member of the hierarchy, Cardinal Guiseppi Roncalli came to the sacristy of the Cathedral to compliment him for the sermon.

He had no idea that Cardinal Roncalli in later years was to become Pope John XXIII.

Shortly afterward Father Higgins was stricken with a serious illness and flown back to this country for surgery. He died shortly after the second surgery.

Father Joseph F. Warnat (in later years to be made a monsignor) was made administrator of the parish in 1945 and during his administration the addition was built. It provided substantially more seating for the parish.

Father Warnat remained at St. Patrick Church until 1948. Territory had been taken from St. Patrick parish two years before for the Shrine of St. Therese.

Father Warnat had supervised construction of the Shrine and was its first pastor. He remained as pastor of the Shrine of St. Therese until approximately eight years ago.

Msgr. Leo Thome succeeded Father Warnat as pastor of St. Patrick Church on October 4, 1948.

The physical plant at St. Patrick's showed the results of parish activity. In 1954 a new convent was bought for the Sisters of Charity. In the same year the old stone building beside the church, vacated by Pueblo Catholic High, was remodeled to provide a parish hall and school gymnasium, with kitchen facilities.

Renewal has been the companion of St. Patrick's parish almost from its beginnings as Pueblo's second parish, and in the past few years St. Patrick's has been a leader in the liturgical renewal outlined by Vatican II.

As early as 1961, many Sunday Masses were offered with the altar facing the people and with the congregation's participation. A special portable altar was kept in the sacristy and carted out for several of the Sunday Masses each week. As further liturgical decrees outlined renewed liturgical practices this altar became a permanent fixture in 1962, and all Masses were celebrated facing the people.

It became evident, however, that the sanctuary was not adequate to contain one portable altar, three stationary altars, a larger-than-life crucifix, six life-size statues, four kneelers and twelve chairs for servers and commentators.

Experimentation began early in 1965 when several men of the parish obtained permission to unclutter the sanctuary. When the wall fastenings for the large crucifix were damaged, plans for a complete revision of the sanctuary were made. Wooden altars with their plaster statues were removed. The walls in the sanctuary were paneled by parishoners in time for Christmas, 1965. To draw attention to the altar and provide illumination, a corona was placed above the altar. During the first months of 1966 a new altar resembling stone was built, together with a table for the reservation of the Blessed Sacrament. All sanctuary furnishings were made by parishoners with donated materials.

During Lent, 1966, the church interior was repainted and a new golden rug laid in the sanctuary. Newest additions are free-standing candles and a processional crucifix.

A new organ, donated in memory of the late Conrad Mikus, was installed for Christmas, 1966. It was placed in the sanctuary to help improve congregational singing.

The liturgical setting, which focuses attention on the altar of sacrifice, the table of reservation, and the pulpit with its shrine for the Word of God, provided a new setting for a new-spirited parish. Said one parishoner, "The people of the parish really participate in the liturgy and it has changed their attitude toward parish life. We learned by doing."

Monsignor Leo Thome served St. Patrick's until his death in 1967.

In August of 1967 the first priest to come assigned to Colorado from Ireland, Fr. John McGrath, took charge as pastor of the destinies of St. Patrick's.

In 1969 St. Patrick's closed its school because of the decline in attendance over the years. The following year all the Catholic schools closed in the city of Pueblo and a new horizon in religious education dawned over the Diocese. More emphasis was placed on the parental responsibility in this field and out of this grew the family education program which was launched in St. Patrick's that year.

Rev. Michael J. Byrne replaced Rev. John McGrath on July 8, 1980. Since arriving at Saint Patrick many changes have taken place in restoring the physical beauty in the parish.

The religious education program has flourished with more children in attendance. Special classes are held for parents whose children are to receive the sacraments. There has been an increase in parish activities with many lay people participating.

MONSIGNOR PATRICK C. STAUTER

A few days after Msgr. Patrick Stauter began his seventeen and a half years in St. Patrick's Parish, he was asked by the Rev. William D. McCarthy to do what he could for an athletic program in Pueblo Catholic High School while promoting the same kind of activity for St. Patrick's grade school "so that our own Catholic boys will be inclined to attend Catholic schools and forget about public schools." For the next twelve years to try to get Catholic boys to attend Catholic schools became the motivating factor in Msgr. Stauter's life.

In the beginning he was given only two brand new basketballs and the promise the rent would be paid on the National Guard Armory near the Fair Grounds where the PCH teams practiced and played their home games. After the formation of the Pueblo parochial league took place the Catholic grade schools, five in number at the time, also used the armory for their games after practicing on the dirt courts of their school grounds.

As World War II wore on for what seemed endless years and all young men were in armed service, Msgr. Stauter tried to take on the duties of assistant coach of both high school and grade school basketball teams escorting them to frequent tournaments in Denver and Trinidad.

Money was scarce and athletic programs were carried on from pittances raised by students selling 10-cent raffle chances. He can remember appealing to mothers to send bread, sandwiches and simple luncheon foods along with their sons while making athletic trips. Grade school basketball uniforms were T-shirts dyed green by mothers and stencilled with iron-on letters.

In 1948, seven years after the beginning of the Diocese of Pueblo, there was afoot a great movement to get PCH out of St. Patrick's old red brick building and to build a modern high school which would bring with it a good gymnasium along with the need of a football field. The large Mt. Carmel block of land bordered by East Abriendo, Jefferson, Washington and Evans, had been the site of a dumping ground and soil tests proved it unsuitable for supporting the proposed new high school building which eventually was built on Lake and Routt, Madison and Evans, on property most of which had originally belonged to St. Patrick's Parish. This left the Abriendo and Jefferson property available for a football field.

The development and construction of the field began on a balmy May evening with Msgr. Stauter leading a willing group of about thirty volunteers, most of them steel workers with a sprinkling of skilled construction men. The work ended perhaps eighteen months later but in the interval with an actual expenditure of less than $12,000. The field, which due to the kindness of the city of Pueblo, still bears the name of "Stauter Field" was built. Good bleachers anchored in level concrete footings seated about 3,000 people and their completion deservedly was viewed with pride by the men who erected them. These were later hauled out to the site of the school formerly called Roncalli High School and set up in a haphazard fashion. The Abriendo field project was paid for by the locally famous "Bucks for Bleachers" column in the Southern Colorado Register which Msgr. Stauter edited for 17 years.

A series of Mardi Gras carnivals were carried on for years to support the PCH athletic programs which began to swing upwards after the Lake Avenue High School building was completed. Msgr. Stauter left the athletic programs in 1952 and became pastor of Durango in 1959. During his long years of residence in St. Patrick's he took part in the regular Mass, confession, preaching and visitation of the sick schedules of the parish. His years in St. Patrick's were the longest assignment of any assistant.

Jesuit Administration

One of the earliest centers of the Catholic Church in Pueblo, St. Patrick's began under the care of the Jesuit Fathers. Although a front was added to the church in 1949, the name dates back to 1882, when Father Daniel Haugh offered the first Mass there on December 2, 1882. Since then the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass has been offered in that Church without interruption except for October, November and December in 1918 when the flu epidemic forced its suspension. This building erected for the second parish in Pueblo lays claim to the title of the oldest Catholic Church building in the city.

For forty-three years the Jesuits took care of St. Patrick's. During that time 15 pastors and 22 assistants were appointed there. Fr. Haugh who was pastor of St. Ignatius' parish from November 1881 till December 1882, raised the money and undertook the construction of St. Patrick's Church. He secured seven lots on the southeast corner of San Pedro and Guadalajara Avenues known as Michigan and Routt today. Two contracts of $5,000 were awarded for the construction of the Church. Before its completion a fire leveled St. Ignatius Church and when it opened its doors two months later St. Patrick's was the sole Catholic Church in Pueblo. It was dedicated on December 2, 1883 by Bishop Joseph Machebeuf of Denver. Pueblo at that time had about 30,000 people - not much less than Denver. The area was divided into two towns, North Pueblo and South Pueblo or the Mesa each represented by separate local governments. On the Mesa were the steelworks that employed the Irish emigrants who were St. Patrick's first parishioners.

The first resident pastor was Fr. Balse Schiffini S.J. who came in June 1884. By the end of the year the Reverend Aloysius Montenarelli S.J. who was to remain nine years succeeded him. Fr. Montenarelli led a busy life making sick calls to far distant places and trying to raise the money to build a combination school and rectory. The limestone building that went up next to the church was the fruit of his activities in 1884 and 1885. It opened as a school in August 1885. Three Sisters of Charity from Cincinnati instructed 150 children in the three classrooms.

Fr. Leo Krenz S.J. built the red brick building in 1901 that considerably increased the size of the school. The debt of $9,000 incurred for this project was liquidated under the pastorship of Father John Weir S.J. in 1904. The parish observed its 25th anniversary by building another new wing on to the school in the pastorate of Fr. Baptist Schimpf.

Three men whose lives were very closely associated with St. Patrick's Church, Pueblo, during the nearly half-century of the Jesuit administration of that parish are the Rev. Francis X. Tomassini, S.J.; the Rev. John Baptist Schimpf, S.J., and the Rev. Edward Barry, S.J. The three of them together spent 29 years in the parish. Father Schimpf remained in charge until 1917 when at his own suggestion Father Barry succeeded him. Father Barry was a native of Ireland. He had been an architect and draftsman in Boston before joining the Society of Jesus. As a priest he was notable for his oratorical qualities and his interest in education and Catholic press work. His career was well epitomized by the saying of one of his confreres, "wherever he was, he worked." Coming to St. Patrick's as pastor for the second time in 1917, it was his chief purpose to develop a school whose educational standing in teaching and equipment as well as in religion and healthful sports would leave nothing to be desired. Foremost in his mind was the plan for a new and up-to-date high school plant. Under his hand the Chronicle, the official parish publication, was edited between the years 1918 and 1922. He also contributed regular articles to various Catholic publications throughout the nation. The school was his pride and shortly before his death in 1922 the registration reached its peak with 434 in the grades and 88 in the high school. With the help of Sister Hildegarde he set up a small chemistry laboratory. A handball court was built, a donation from John Vail. Swings and basketball courts were installed in the schoolyard, a space, however, which was becoming very congested. The Chronicle for January, 1921, shows an architect's sketch by Father Barry of his proposed addition to the school buildings. This was to be the third wing, a three-story structure with windows on three sides. Thirty-two by 86 feet with 12 foot ceilings, it was to provide six additional classrooms with a basement outfitted with showers and athletic equipment.

Rumors of change in administration caused Father Barry to hesitate to construct a building which would leave considerable debt as a legacy to his successors in the administration of the parish. Father Schimpf returned to St. Patrick's as assistant pastor in 1921 and became pastor for the second time in 1922 after Father Barry died. In his second pastorate Father Schimpf made an addition to the sister's convent and remodeled the stone building so that it could again be used for school purposes. It had been used solely as a rectory since 1910. A chemistry laboratory designed by the Rev. J. Forstall, S.J. of Regis College, Denver, was installed in the second story of the building. In order to house the priests a one-story series of rooms was added to the rear of the church.

Father Schimpf was succeeded as pastor in 1923 by the Rev. John Neenan, S.J. Father Neenan was the last Jesuit pastor of the parish.

The school served as a relief station during the Pueblo Flood; men were housed in the auditorium and women and children in the classrooms. The women of the parish, with the Red Cross, served 1,200 meals.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH OF ST. FRANCIS XAVIER

PUEBLO,
COLORADO

This is a place of awe; this is God's house, the gate of heaven, and it shall be called the royal court of God. (Gen. 28)

A HISTORY OF ST. FRANCIS XAVIER PARISH COMMUNITY

Before 1903 people of the Catholic community in the Minnequa area of Pueblo walked to St. Patrick's Church to attend Sunday mass. In 1903 the people of the area, about 150 strong, petitioned for their own parish community to the bishop of Denver. During the summer and fall of that same year the first church was erected under the leadership of Fr. Kowald, S.J., the first pastor, and dedicated to St. Francis Xavier. Fr. Kowald continued to live at St. Patrick's rectory.

In 1914 Fr. A. M. Bertram, S.J. was appointed pastor. He built the present rectory in that year and thus became the first resident pastor of the new parish. In 1923 a mission church of the parish was built in Beulah, Colorado, on land that had been donated to the church. The name of that church was St. Catherine.

The community of Jesuit priests decided to hand over the pastoral care of St. Francis Xavier to the diocese of Denver in 1924. Fr. A. J. Miller was appointed pastor by the bishop of Denver in place of Fr. Bertram. Fr. Miller came with instructions from the bishop of Denver to build a school as quickly as possible. It was decided to convert the church into a school and to build a new church. Martin Higgins was the architect, superintendent and engineer of the new building. He lived in the rectory during construction. The church was dedicated in September of 1925.

In 1942 St. Francis Xavier parish became part of the new diocese of Pueblo. In 1947 a second mission church was built and dedicated to St. Aloysius in Rye, Colorado. In 1954 the parish had become so large that it was subdivided and a new parish was founded called Holy Family. The new parish also took over the pastoral care of St. Aloysius, Rye. In 1989 the church of St. Francis Xavier was completely cleaned, repainted and recarpeted by members of the parish community.

Other pastors of St. Francis Xavier parish have been Fr. Joseph Halloran, Fr. Edward Pettit and Fr. Vicente Paz en la Casa.

Roselawn Cemetery Association is a Colorado non-profit corporation founded in 1891. For the past one hundred years the affairs of this association have been managed by various Boards of Directors composed of honorable, responsible, concerned citizens who serve for the sole purpose of providing the people of Pueblo County with an outstanding place of burial. The Directors have authorized two and three year contracts with no interest or carrying charges to allow people to purchase their pre-need items at a reasonable price. A Brief History of Roselawn Cemetery

Riverview Cemetery was created by the Pueblo Cemetery Association when 18 shareholders contracted to purchase 350 acres from the Colorado Coal and Iron Company. Mahlon D. Thatcher called the first meeting at the offices of Z. V. Trine & Company, and the incorporation papers were filed January 22, 1891. The plan was to issue 2,500 shares that would sell at $100 per share. Mahlon Thatcher, Michael H. Fitch, and Delos L. Holden were the trustees. By November 2, 1891, 600 shares had sold to 31 stockholders. Rev. Richard di Palma was the largest shareholder with 60 shares. The burial rate was $5 for adults, $4 for children under 12 years, and $3 for children under age 3. On June 6, 1891, the first internment was of 41 year old John S. Kummerer in Block 30, Lot 106. John had been a clerk at the Star Clothing House at 307 S. Union Avenue. McMahon & Collier, share owners in the cemetery, were the undertakers.

By 1899, the Association claimed that 80.92% of all Pueblo County burials were at Riverside. Because the Association granted burial rights in specific sections to churches and organizations, most of the Protestant graves were to the left of the main entrance, and the Catholic graves were to the right. Grave sites for the Jewish community are intermingled with Catholic grave sites near the entrance.

The Panic of 1893 seriously hurt the development of the cemetery, and the Association was unable to meet its land payments to the Colorado Coal and Iron Company. The cemetery acreage was reduced, and on November 14, 1905 the cemetery was renamed Roselawn Cemetery. The Riverview name had been chosen because the original acreage stretched to the banks of the Arkansas River. On November 1, 1926 the corporation was liquidated, and the Roselawn Cemetery Association became nonprofit. Today, Roselawn Cemetery's perpetual care service consists of 131 acres with more than 50,000 burials.

Soon National Catholic churches, which were not a part of the Pueblo diocese, were requesting that special blocks be dedicated to the burial of their parishioners. In December 1894, Reverend Jeseph M. Marra acquired Blocks 55, 56, 57, and a portion of 29 for St. Patrick's Church. In 1908, St. Mary's Church and the Colorado Society of Benedictines, under the direction of Cyril Zupan, established Block 20,21, and part of 22, for burials for their congregations. The Greek Orthodox Community Association reserved lots in Block 23 in 1916. In the November 12, 1917 minutes of the Association, it was recorded that the St. Patrick representative was "mad" about the "Austrian (St. Mary's) Catholic loss of money" to St. Patrick's.

The first burial area to be given to a religious group was June 6, 1891 to the Sisters of Charity (Block 29). The next gift was the Sisters of Lorretto on September 5, 1898, and the first burial was Sister Josene on December 12th of that year. Five gravestones to the right of Sister Josene is the grave of Father Murray. In 1942, Father Murray, assistant pastor of Mount Carmel, and a small group of parishioners organized Mount Carmel Credit Union. Business began in January 1943 in the basement of Mount Carmel Church. The first major goal was to assist the squatters in Smelter Hill, Pepper Sauce Bottoms and Salt Creek to obtain title to their homes. Many of the families had lived in their homes for generations without ownership of the land title. The Cemetery Association also donated land to theWomen's Hospital Association (Block 12, Lot 91).

This is a good time to stop and look at the trees around you.

The cemetery developers visioned Roselawn as a Memorial Park with green plants and trees as an essential feature. This is reflected in the Chieftain, December 5, 1892 advertisement that describes the cemetery as the silent city of the dead, undisturbed under a carpet of green, beneath the solemn pines, the sad hemlocks, the tearful willows, the embracing vines, the cherished remains of our sainted dead.

The cemetery was laid out in irregular blocks, with curved streets and winding paths. Banks along the streets had running water. The first grass was irrigated by ditches and flooding from a small pond. There were trees of every variety as well as shrubs and flowers. As early as 1891, the Association purchased 2,000 trees from Dittmer Orchards for 30 to 40 cents per tree.

Today, visitors to the cemetery are surrounded by a wide variety of trees that have symbolic meaning as well as beauty. A nature walk booklet, "The Trees of Roselawn" is available in the Cemetery Office.

Open casket photos provided a last opportunity for a photograph of a loved one.

At the May 1891 stockholders meeting, a resolution passed requiring any church or society having a special block set aside for the exclusive use of their members be required to pledge to make no internment in any other cemetery. At the June 1891 stockholders meeting, Father Richard di Palma requested that Blocks 14 and 29 be set aside for the Catholic burials. Masonic Lodge No. 31 soon asked for Block 13. In September, the Grand Army of the Republic requested Block 12, and in October Masonic Lodge 17 requested a special block. C. E. Olin asked that Block 13 be set aside for Masonic Lodge No. 31. The Elks requested Block 18 in 1907. On August 15, 1891, Father Ley, pastor at St. Ignacious, proposed that the Catholic churches should receive a ten percent commission for each Catholic burial. Copies of the agreement were signed by Father's Ley, di Palma and Bonafice. Bishop Matz formally agreed to the plan for Catholic burials on January 21, 1892. By March 1897, prior to the burial in the Catholic section, written permission from a Catholic priest had to be obtained.

Turn around and retrace your route a short distance to the narrow section between Block 24 and 29. Stop at the Gast monument. H

The Gast family was a prominent Pueblo family. Charles E. Gast, his son Robert and his grandson, Robert Jr., were all attorneys. The Gast mansion, 1801 N. Greenwood street, is on the National Register of Historic places. The Richardsonian Romanesque and Queen Anne style house features a variety of window shapes and sizes. The mansion was lived in by four generations of the Gast family over a period of 68 years.

Just behind the Gast tombstone is the gravestone for Clara Latshaw.

Clara Latshaw (Block 24, Lot 199) - As president of the Ladies Park and Improvement Association, Clara Latshaw violated convention when she went to Denver all by herself to convince Henry C. Brown, owner of the Brown Palace Hotel, to sell the land surrounding the Mineral Palace building. Clara succeeded in having Brown agree to $35,000 rather than the $45,000 he had been demanding. Mineral Palace became Pueblo District 1 on August 3, 1896. Lake Clara was named in her honor, and all of the row boats were named in honor of the women on her committee.

Stop at Hedly Monument on the right in Block 14. I

The most beloved Roselawn monument is that of Hedley Harold (Block 14, Lot 81) who died in 1891. Old timers tell about his death at age five. As the days of the boy's illness passed, Hedley made a special request to his mother that his cap, shirt, pants and shoes be placed on a small chair near his bed because one day soon he would be well, and he wanted them to be ready when he arose. After his death, his family erected a special gravestone of his little chair with the cap, shirt, pants and shoes waiting for him.

Do not stand at my grave and weep;
I am not there. I do not sleep.
I am a thousand winds that blow;
I am the diamond glints on snow.
I am the sunlight on ripened grain;
I am the gentle autumn's rain.
When you awake in the morning's hush,
I am the swift uplifting rush
Of quiet birds in circle flight.
I am the soft star that shines at night.
Do not stand at my grave and cry.
I am not there; I did not die.

"Blessed are they who die in the Lord, for their works follow them!"
APOCALYPSE

My Jesus, have mercy on the Soul of

MRS. EDNA JONES
JAN. 27, 1957

GENTLEST Heart of Jesus, ever present in the Blessed Sacrament, ever consumed with burning love for the poor captive souls in Purgatory, have mercy on the soul of Thy departed servant.

Be not severe in Thy judgment, but let some drops of Thy Precious Blood fall upon the devouring flames, and do Thou, O merciful Saviour, send Thy angels to conduct Thy departed servant to a place of refreshment, light and peace. Amen.

Eternal rest grant unto them, O Lord! and let perpetual light shine upon them.

May the souls of all the faithful departed, through the mercy of God, rest in peace. Amen.

Roselawn Cemetery Association is a Colorado non-profit corporation founded in 1891. For the past one hundred years the affairs of this association have been managed by various Boards of Directors composed of honorable, responsible, concerned citizens who serve for the sole purpose of providing the people of Pueblo County with an outstanding place of burial. The Directors have authorized two and three year contracts with no interest or carrying charges to allow people to purchase their pre-need items at a reasonable price. All monies received from services and sales revert directly back into the cemetery operation. With your purchases you are helping us maintain your cemetery.
